Mitchell Bollinger to Lead Courtland Partners' Research Initiative

(February 28, 2017) –Courtland Partners, Ltd., a global institutional real asset (real estate, infrastructure, energy, timber and agriculture) consulting services firm, is pleased to announce that Mitchell Bollinger joined the company as vice president, real assets research to lead Courtland Partners' research initiative. He has 12 years of real estate and finance experience and previously worked as an engineer for seven years.

“I look forward to bolstering Courtland's already robust research capability and supporting client decision making with the most current real estate research and analysis,” said Bollinger.

Steven C. Novick, member/principal and chief operating officer of Courtland said, “Since Mitch joined the firm, we have already seen the value he adds to Courtland and its clients.”

Prior to Courtland, Bollinger started a private real estate advisory firm called Magnolia Realty Advisors which launched a private investment fund that invested in publicly traded REITs based upon his proprietary research. Bollinger was with KBS Realty Advisors in Atlanta, GA from 2008 to 2013, where he asset managed a portfolio of commercial real estate valued at approximately $1B. From 2004 to 2008, he was a consultant to the CMBS industry in New York City supporting clients, which included Merrill Lynch and Bear Stearns.
